

I am part owner of a Wireless Internet Service that was started because of the lack of broadband service in my rural community. I cannot believe that you would even consider making WISP's pay money to companies that neglected the areas WISP's now serve. Being a small wireless provider is not an economical windfall. I work hard for every single dollar my company makes and every single dollar is invested right back into my business. Asking WISP's to subsidize the large Telcos is ludicrous. If anything, they should be subsidizing us for picking up where they left off.

Sincerely,

Steven E. Dietzel
